PROFILE

A motivated and results-driven BSc (Hons) Information Systems (First Class) graduate from the Institute of Public Administration and Management (IPAM)–University of Sierra Leone, with a strong interest in technology, innovation, and continuous learning. As one of the youngest graduates in my cohort, I demonstrate adaptability, resilience, and a proactive approach to problem-solving. I have a solid academic foundation in web development, database management, and information systems, developed through university coursework, self directed learning, and hands-on tutorials. I am highly organised, a strong team player, and proficient in the Microsoft Office Suite, enabling me to contribute effectively in both technical and professional environments.
